WUSD looking at possible new school bond or parcel tax measure

■ 'Finishing' RCHS, building career trade school campus are both being considered

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento's school district may ask local voters to approve new school bonds or parcel taxes a year from now. The money could be used to help finish the new River City High School campus, and build a career and technical education center elsewhere in West Sacramento.

"We do have some interest in taking a look at completing the high school, including a performing arts center," Superintendent Dayton Gilleland told the News-Ledger yesterday. "Also a career technical education center. And we have roofs that need work throughout the district."

Gilleland said it was too early to talk about the dollar amounts Washington Unified School District might request from local voters. The school board will make some decisions on its shopping list and any bond or parcel tax request after the results of a new consultant's study come in.

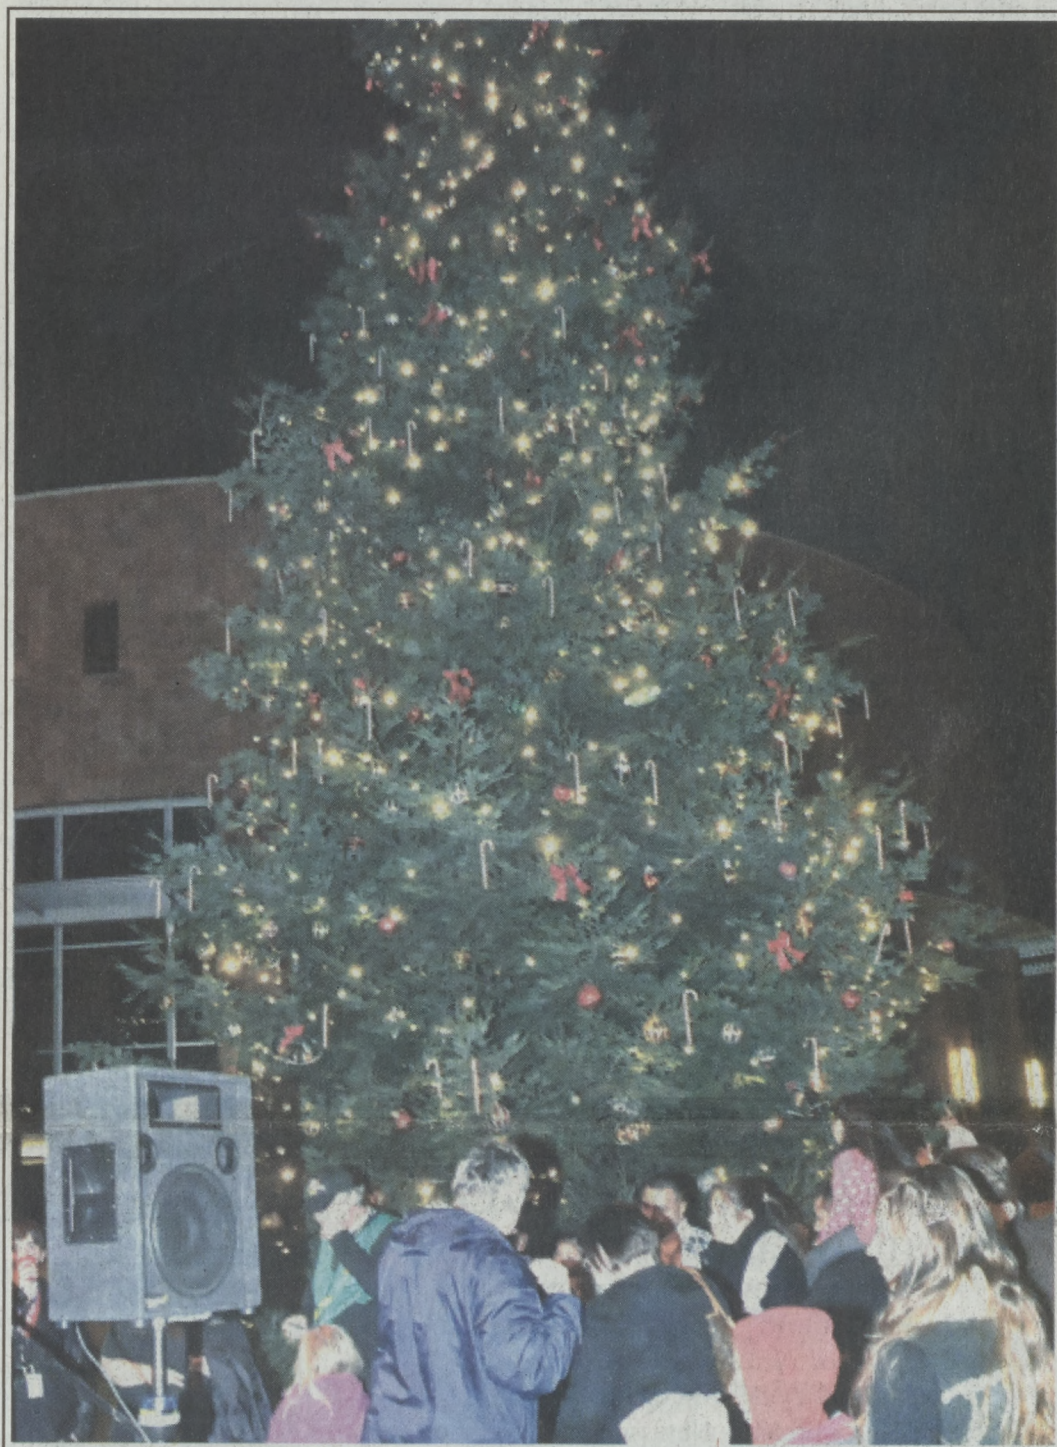

On Thursday, the board is scheduled to consider a contract (valued at around $20-30,000) with a consulting group called Solem & Associates. WUSD officials propose to hire the company to interview several hundred demographically-chosen voters and try to gauge their reaction to different proposals and "test a range of bond amounts that include the annual cost to a typical homeowner," as the company's initial proposal states.

The survey would ask voters about which potential projects on the district's shopping list are important to them, and which campaign arguments (on both sides of a possible bond or tax campaign) might be most persuasive.

'Amber Alert': peaceful end

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

More information is available on a West Sacramento domestic violence incident that led to a state-wide "Amber Alert" last night. Police were concerned about the safety of three young children after their father took them away.

The alert — along with names and photos of the suspect and the kids — was distributed widely on media websites and on the airwaves yesterday. The incident ended peacefully last night, with the man in jail and the children reunited with their mother.

Lieutenant Tod Sockman of the West Sacramento Police Department said the trouble began with a domestic violence incident at the home of Dmitriy V. Gerasimov and his family on the 600-block of Cummins Way.

"The husband and wife got into a fight on Saturday, and she sustained moderate injuries," said Sockman. "Then he threw their 1 1/2 year old boy across the room, and (the toddler) sustained moderate injuries. Then (Dmitriy Gerasimov) drove to their ward," said Sockman. "He was apparently driving around, and had been in contact with relatives, but hadn't gone to their houses. Then, (Monday), he called his wife and said, 'listen, if you don't take me back, I have access to a plane, and I will put the children on a plane and you'll never see them again.' That hit the threshold of 'parental abduction.'"

Police then tracked Gerasimov's cell phone — and it showed him as being in El Dorado County. Investigators were concerned that the man could become violent against the kids.

"The sheriff's department in El Dorado put every available man on it. They made contact with him at the In & Out burger place on Forni Road, and took him into custody without incident, at around 9:50 p.m. (Monday)."

"The kids are okay, we brought them back," said Sockman.

Gerasimov is in jail facing domestic violence and child endangerment charges.

grandmother and grandfather's house in Citrus Heights, and he took the other three children. There are no special custody rights — he had parental rights at that point. He picks up the three kids and leaves."

The children included boys age seven and two, as well as a four-year old girl.

Police talked to the family and a felony warrant was issued for Gerasimov, age 30, on domestic violence charges. They also obtained an emergency protective order.

Investigators tried to reach him.

Words that send a chill into any husband's heart

Not too long ago I wrote a column entitled, "What every woman needs to have in her handbag" in which I talked about a friend of mine who carries a huge, ear-piercing whistle in her purse in case she is ever accosted on the street by a strange or suspicious-looking man with less than honorable intentions. As a young woman she had her purse stolen from her in broad daylight and she was determined never to let that happen again. I told her she had been watching too many old English movies where you could blow a whistle and the police would actually come running, but she said just having the whistle in her handbag made her feel safer, and we both agree that was the important thing. Anyway, I also mentioned in that column some of the other stuff women often carry in their purses and thought I had pretty much covered the subject, but apparently not, as a News-Ledger subscriber called me the other day to inform me that I had only touched the tip of the iceberg.

"My purse has actually evolved into more of a suitcase," the nice lady explained to me over the phone, "and would you like to hear just some of the things I carry in it?"

"Sure," I said, never wanting to turn down a potential good column idea.

"Well," she said, taking a deep breath as if she was preparing herself for a very long sentence, "at the present time, the staples in my purse include an eyeglasses repair kit, a small flashlight, my buck knife, a 12-foot tape measure, lots of Kleenex — both fresh and used, a first aid kit complete with iodine and lots of Band-Aids, sanitary wipes and an anti-bacteria spray, a couple of different kinds of hand lotions, at least two small notebooks, my Flair pens, a couple of calculators since you never know when one of them is going to stop working, my iPod of course, my cell phone — which at least replaces the address book and the small photo albums of the children that I used to never leave home without, a sewing kit with scissors, and a pouch of office supplies like paper clips, hi-lighter, a mini-stapler and staple remover, a glue stick, stamps and a pack of sticky notes. Then there is also the gum, breath-mints and assorted candies that are always necessary to have on hand, as well as travel toothpaste and a toothbrush, bottles of my two favorite perfumes, lots of Chapstick, a hairbrush and plenty of hair clips, my change purse, although the change people give me always somehow ends up in the bottom of my purse, and my wallet, which is usually stuffed with countless receipts of one kind or another instead of money. Let's see — what else. Oh, my glasses of course — the regular ones, my sunglasses and also my reading glasses in case I lose a contact lens. The contact lens case and kit, a pouch of feminine hygiene supplies, hand-warmers in the winter, packages of Tylenol and anti-acids, eye drops, nose spray, hair spray, a card-case which houses all of my frequent shopper/rewards cards, nail files, nail clippers and clear nail polish, lots of envelopes stuffed with various things, an extra pair of panty hose in case I get a run in one of them at work, the current paperback book I am reading on my breaks, shopping lists and a couple of plastic shopping bags that can come in handy in all kinds of ways, a small roll of duct tape, key rings that have keys on them that I no longer know what they were used to open, and matches and a lighter in case someone asks me for one of them, even though I no longer smoke. A can of Mace spray, my son's old miniature Pound Puppy, which is kind of like a good-luck charm, anxiety medication, some spare underwear that my mother always insisted I have in my purse, various drug prescriptions which I always forget to fill, brochures of one kind or another, paint sample cards for the kitchen and bathrooms which have needed to be painted for years, shopping circulars and lots of different kinds of coupons, and lots of interesting articles and recipes I have cut out of newspapers and magazines."

"Is that it?" I asked as she finally took a moment to catch her breath.

"Oh," she quickly added, "and a dog leash just in case I see a dog running free who needs to be rescued before a car comes along and hits it."

"Wow," I said, "that's quite a purse you have there!"

"And do you want to know the words my husband lives in fear of me saying?" she asked with a smile in her voice.

"Sure."

"It's in my purse — just go look!"

'At the present time, the staples in my purse include an eyeglasses repair kit, a small flashlight, my buck knife, a 12-foot tape measure, lots of Kleenex — both fresh and used -- a first aid kit complete with iodine and lots of Band-Aids. . .'

Tower Gateway is 'reborn' as a surface street

During a morning ribbon-cutting last Wednesday, the City of West Sacramento marked the completion of the east phase construction of the Tower Bridge Gateway, converting the former State Route 275 into a city arterial. Located west of the Tower Bridge, the new street opens up the city's entrance and creates new pedestrian-friendly connections in West Sacramento, as well as downtown Sacramento.

As a city street, Tower Bridge Gateway now limits traffic speed to 35 MPH. The street features wider sidewalks and narrower intersections and more defined bicycle and street car routes to reinforce the urban scale, mixed use character of the adjacent Washington and Bridge neighborhoods.

Reconstruction of Tower Bridge Gateway has long been a priority of the City and the Sacramento Area Council of Governments (SACOG), to make possible the development potential of the infill areas bordering the roadway and near Raley Field.

Tower Bridge Gateway was completed in two phases. The West Phase, including the Garden Street intersection, was completed in 2008, providing enhanced access to the City's new Civic Center on West Capitol Avenue. The previous configuration of the old State Route 275 hampered investment in urban scale development, which is less dependent on automobiles.

Providing two lanes of through-traffic in each direction, Tower Bridge Gateway has added two at-grade signalized intersections at 3rd Street and 5th Street along Tower Bridge Gateway. Six-foot wide bike lanes were also added to each side of Tower Bridge Gateway.

The project also accommodates conceptual plans for future streetcar movement between 3rd Street and 5th Street.

The funding sources for the Tower Bridge Gateway East Phase included a SACOG Community Design Grant, the state's Proposition 1C Infill Infrastructure Grant, the Proposition 1B State-Local Partnership Program, the Community Facilities District 27-Bridge District Property Owners, and the West Sacramento Redevelopment Agency.

The consulting company says it recognizes that this is not an ideal economy in which to ask voters to pay more local taxes:

Voters "expect local districts to tighten their belts just as they've been doing with their personal finances," said Solem's proposal.

Local voters approved bonds to pay for the new high school that opened three years ago. But they saw cost estimates skyrocket, taking that project over $150 million – despite dropping one classroom wing and a planned performing arts center from the project. So how can WUSD now convince local voters to part with more money for the same project?

Gilleland – who became superintendent after the school was built – said that "trust" will help.

"We can't turn the clock back," said Gilleland. "We could establish (to the public) how the funds were utilized. I think we've established some trust in the school district."

Building a career technical vocational facility is also important to the school board, and could be funded by new money from voters, he said.

"It could be a 'magnet' school that draws kids from the other campuses for part of the day," Gilleland explained. The facility could help train kids who aren't headed for a traditional college or university, and who instead are looking for services in fields such as biomedical services, engineering, communications, web design, health services or construction.

The career training campus might go at what's currently the Bryte Elementary campus, after that kindergarten-through-second-grade school consolidates with Riverbank Elementary's grade 3-8 campus.

When might voters see a ballot for a new parcel tax or school bond measure?

"We're looking at the suitability of the November election a year from now," answered Gilleland.

Meanwhile, the district is also reevaluating its landholdings, and considering whether to hold, lease or sell WUSD real estate. The evaluation process follows a state-mandated procedure, involving formation of a special committee governed by rules of the education code.

The committee will look at WUSD's real estate, examine enrollment projections, and make a report to the school board on what, if anything, to do.

"It's just something we wanted to do on a periodic basis," said Gilleland. "The layperson – and I count myself as one of those – would assume this is not a promising time to sell any surplus property."

The so-called "7-11 Committee" meets tonight at 5:30 p.m. at Room 75 in the district office to continue its discussions of WUSD real estate.

The school board itself will convene at 6 p.m. on Thursday at city hall, 1110 West Capitol Avenue. Part of the agenda will deal with the proposed contract with Solem & Associates regarding a school bond and property tax survey.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thanks, West Sac!

The West Sacramento Lyon agents say "thank you, West Sacramento!"

Lyon Real Estate collected 3,110 coats in our 17 offices across the Sacramento Region for our annual coat drive — but West

Sacramento's Lyon office collected the highest percentage of its goal, and gathered more than 10 times the number of coats needed to reach the original goal, which was determined by the size of our community.

West Sacramento is bigger than its numbers!

Our success is due to the outstanding character of the West Sacramento community. We are so proud to serve you.

and the agents of Lyon Real Estate West Sacramento

Landscape Maintenance Services in Community Facility Districts and Landscape and Lighting Districts
On An As-Needed Basis TO WORK WITH THE CITY OF WEST SACRAM

West Sacramento & other Yolo cities and governments working on emergency plans

From the County of Yolo

Every five years, the local Multi-Hazard Mitigation Plan is updated and submitted to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). The plan addresses threats from potential hazards and identifies possible strategies to reduce impacts. This year, Yolo County, the cities of Davis, West Sacramento, Winters and Woodland, the Yocha Dehe Wintun Nation, Yolo County Housing, and the Yolo County Office of Education are completing a combined Multi-Hazard Mitigation Plan. As part of the plan update process, the public is invited to attend a meeting where information about the plan, including the hazards identified, will be discussed.

One such meeting was held yesterday in Woodland. A second is planned for this evening from 6:00 - 7:00 p.m. at Winters City Hall Council Chambers, 318 First Street, Winters. (Note: enter through the Abbey Street side)

GUEST COMMENTARY:

Woodsmoke pollutes: consider alternatives to open fireplace burning

From the Yolo-Solano Air Quality Management District

During the holiday season, many residents will consider whether to burn wood in their fireplaces and woodstoves. While for many burning wood is a tradition, the particles in the woodsmoke can cause breathing difficulties for those both inside and outside the home according to the Yolo-Solano Air Quality Management District (YSAQMD). Woodsmoke also generates toxic air pollutants, including dioxin, benzene and formaldehyde.

Woodsmoke can be a significant source of air pollution especially during the winter months. Wintertime inversions can trap woodsmoke pollutants at ground-level for lengthy periods of time, making air unhealthy to breathe. Numerous studies link exposure to wood smoke to health hazards including higher rates of childhood asthma, heart disease and even premature death.

To reduce your exposure to woodsmoke, the YSAQMD is asking residents to enjoy a smoke free holiday season by following these guidelines:

Break the woodburning tradition habit.

Retrofit your fireplace to burn natural gas, a cleaner alternative to woodburning.

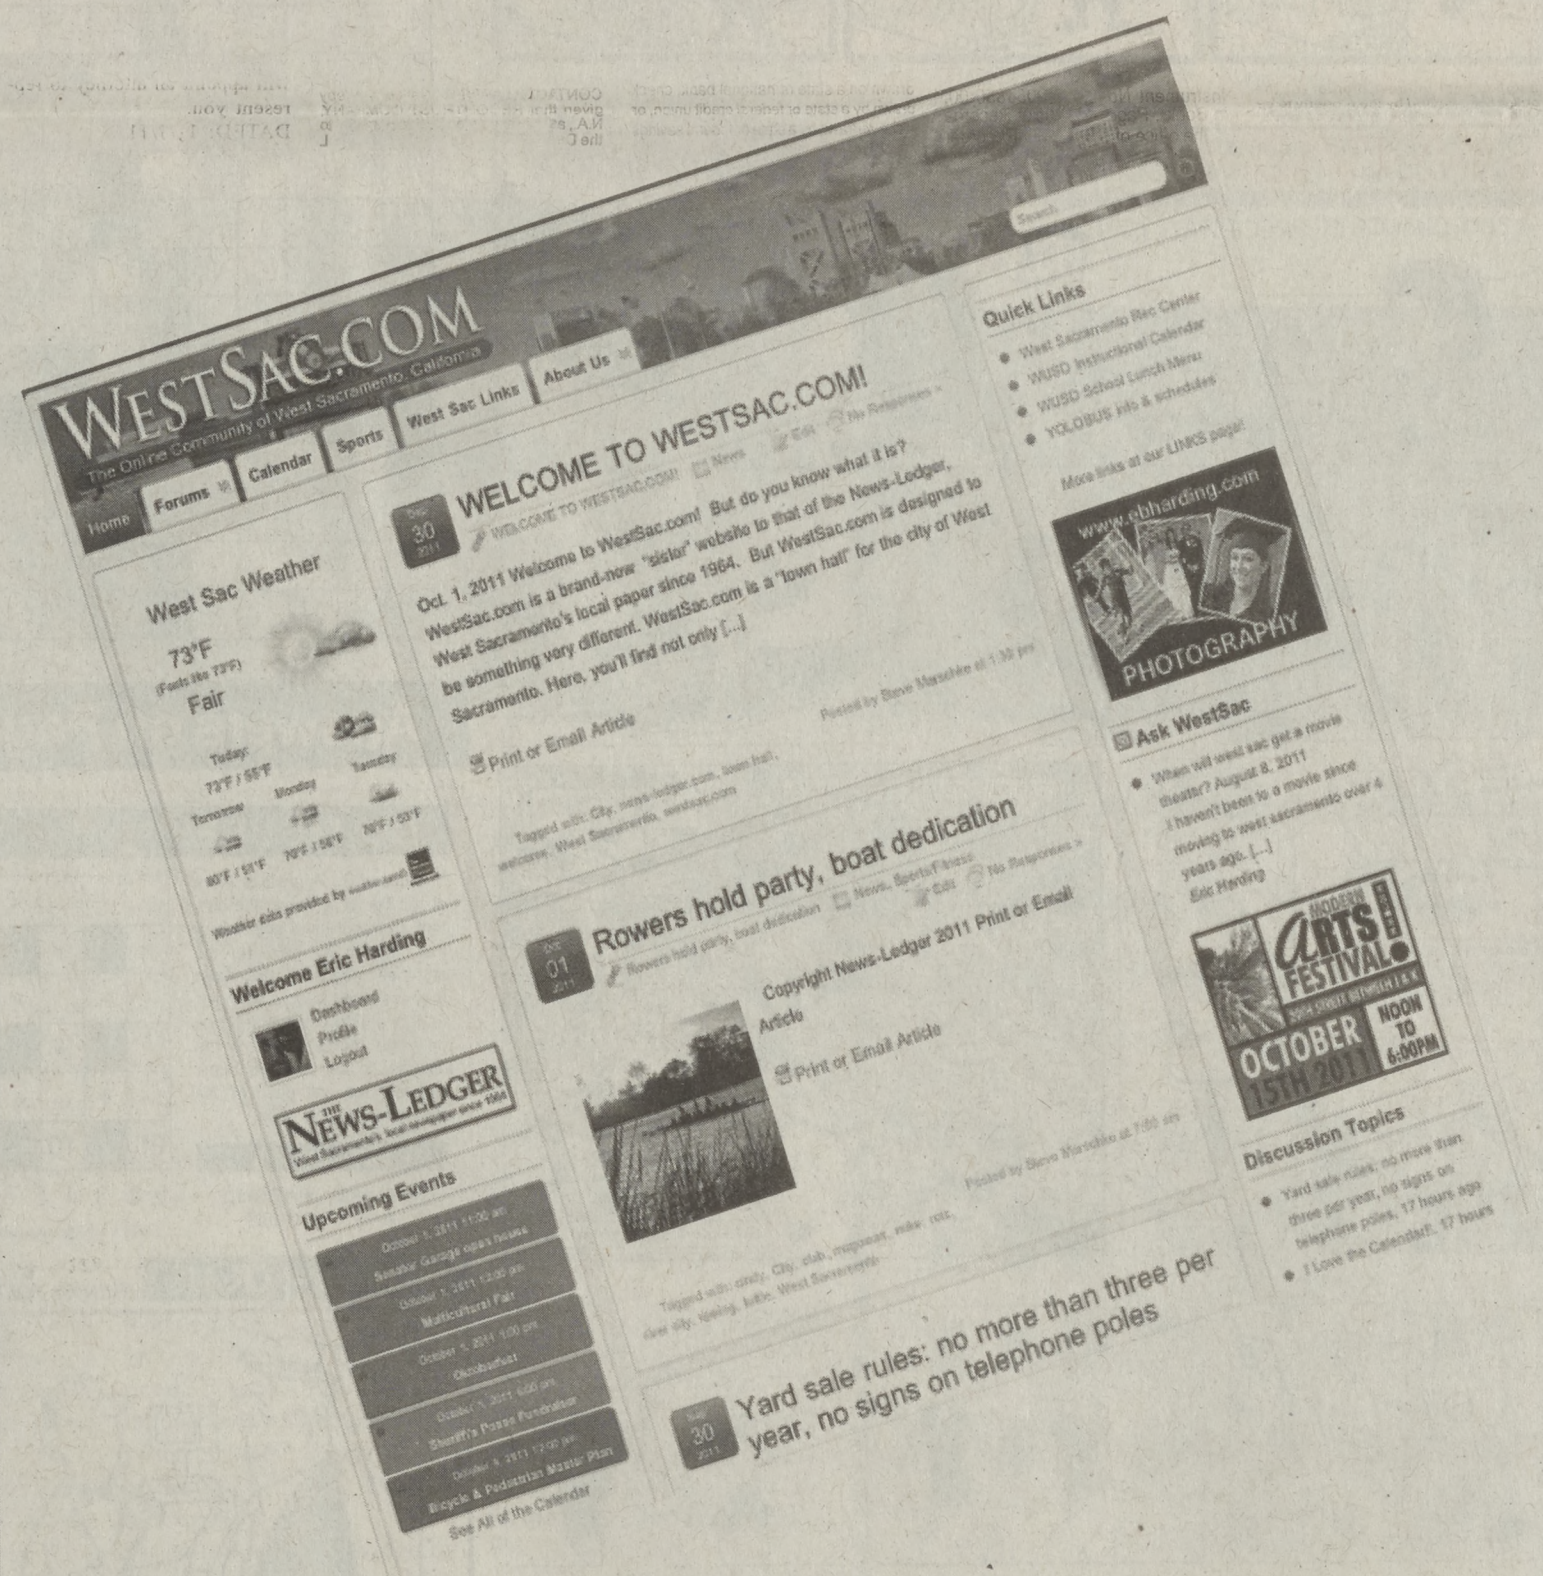

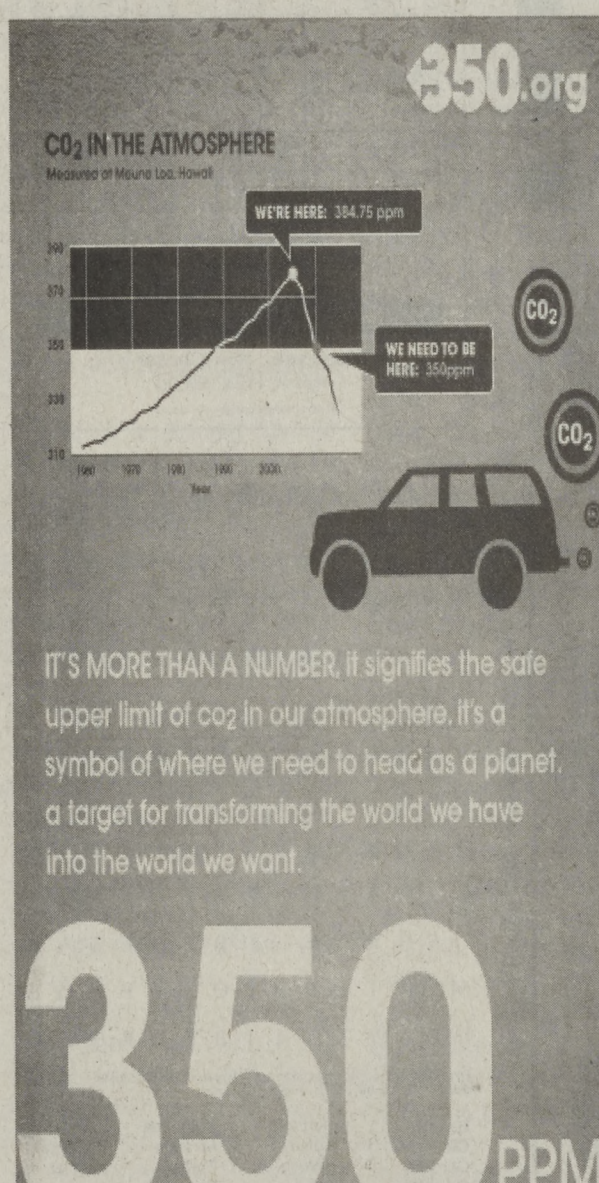

If you must burn wood, burn less and use only dry, seasoned wood. Moist or green wood smolders more, producing greater amounts of harmful air pollutants.

Never burn garbage, chemically treated or painted wood or wrapping paper which can produce noxious smoke and fumes, and release toxic compounds into the air.

Check your chimney. There should be little or no smoke. Excess smoke means the fire isn't burning properly.

For a copy of the District's brochure "Where There is Fire, There is Smoke" which contains more helpful tips on how to produce an efficient fire with minimum impact on yourself and your neighborhood, visit the District's website: www.ysaqmd.org or contact the District at (800) 287-3650.

GO FIGURE!

by Linda Thistle

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Fright Night" (R) -- This '80s classic had to be resurrected to cash in on the sexy vampire trend, but at least this supernatural thriller's undead heart is in the right place. Charlie (Anton Yeltsin) is a high school senior who thinks he has it all. When people in the neighborhood go missing, a trail of evidence indicates that Charlie's mysterious neighbor (Colin Farrell) is actually a vampire.

While the movie isn't especially scary, viewers will be drawn in by talented performances and a script that drums on the raw nerves of the psyche. Farrell's vampire radiates the right level of predatory seduction that congeals into a memorable and multi-dimensional monster. Whether it's Charlie's desire for maturity, his single mother's desperation or his girlfriend's youthful beauty and vulnerability, "Fright Night" knows how to get under the skin and add weight to the climactic conflict.

'Caesar' the ape

"Kung Fu Panda 2" (PG) -- After realizing his potential and achieving his dream of being the Dragon Warrior, Po the Panda (voiced by an emphatic Jack Black) learns his Kung Fu adventure is just beginning. When an evil force using a new weapon threatens the realm and the future of Kung Fu, Po and the Furious Five engage on a mesmerizing series of action sequences to save the day.

This spectacle is less of a touching morality tale and more of a wild action-comedy for the kids. While the storytelling lacks discipline, Dreamworks earns a black belt in visual splendor and creative combat.

"Rise of the Planet of the Apes" (PG-13) -- This out-of-the-blue reboot sticks to the good old "We're the REAL monsters" theme, but manages to win the war against the stale flavor of another out-of-the-blue

Check Holiday Lists Twice!

As the holiday season approaches, many of us have holiday parties and gatherings to plan. In these tough economic times, we face the daunting task of keeping alive our family traditions without breaking our budget. The good news is that by being creative and planning carefully, and making lists, you still can make this season fun and memorable.

Most of your budget may be spent on purchasing food for the holidays. The following budget-friendly tips and my easy, meatless recipe can help you save money and have fun at the same time.

1. Establish your budget and how much you can afford to spend. Design a menu around your budget and what is seasonal or on sale at the grocery store. Next, write a list of who will be invited. Your budget will guide you on the number of guests you can comfortably invite.

2. Keep a grocery list so you're less likely to make an impulse purchase. A list also should prevent you from making extra trips to the store. Stick to your list for added savings, but stay flexible if you come across a sale.

3. Use coupons! In most cases, grocery stores have great sales on holiday staples like turkeys and hams. Their goal is to get you into the store with the hope that you'll buy lots of other products that are not on sale. Use this to your advantage, but only buy items you need. Check for online coupons as well. Start with the website of the store where you shop or of products you use. Shopping on double or triple coupon days can save you a lot of money.

4. Buy in bulk. If the price is right and the larger size fits your criteria, go for it! Prices can be deceiving, so pay attention to unit prices to ensure you are getting the best deal. Bigger is not always cheaper. Make sure you will use the food before it spoils.

5. Save on store brands. Buy generic and you could save up to 40 percent a year on your grocery bill. In taste tests, most consumers cannot identify the difference between generic and store brands.

6. Shop high and low. Bargains are usually on the top or bottom shelves. The worst deals are at eye level.

7. Pay attention at the checkout. Don't lose out on a great deal because an item scans incorrectly.

8. If you're hosting a holiday gathering, ask for help with meal preparation. This will help relieve some of the financial burden. Contact everyone on your holiday guest list and see who can bring a dish to share. Guests traveling from out of town may not be able to bring perishable items, but they can grab some nonperishables on their way in. Make sure you coordinate who's bringing what to avoid overlap.

9. Include a variety of meatless dishes, like my recipe for Penne Pasta With Pumpkin Sauce. You may have some of the ingredients on hand from Thanksgiving, or they may be on sale. Meatless meals are often cheaper and, as a bonus, generally healthier, too.

10. Help others. How about serving some homemade food or giving a grocery-store gift certificate to a family in need? This is the greatest investment you can make for your money during the holiday season. Happy holidays!

PENNE PASTA WITH PUMPKIN SAUCE

If you don't have poultry seasoning on hand, you can add in a tablespoon of Italian seasoning and 1/4 teaspoon each of nutmeg and cinnamon.

Salt

1 pound whole-wheat penne pasta

2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1 small onion, finely chopped
3 to 4 cloves garlic, minced
2 cups chicken stock
1 (15-ounce) can pumpkin puree
1/2 cup cream or evaporated milk
1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon hot sauce or 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/2 cup grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese

1. Heat water for pasta, salt it and bring to a rolling boil. Cook penne until it's tender but still firm, about 8 to 10 minutes.

2. Heat olive oil in a large saucepan over medium heat. Add onion and garlic to the pan, saute 3 minutes. Stir in chicken stock and combine with pumpkin, stir in cream or evaporated milk. Season sauce with poultry seasoning, hot sauce or cayenne pepper, and salt and pepper, stirring well.

3. Reduce heat to medium-low and simmer 5 to 6 minutes more to thicken. Drain pasta and combine with sauce. Sprinkle pasta with grated cheese. Serves 4 to 6.

franchise reboot. Smartypantsed apes decide that being used as test subjects isn't so great, and an army of primate anarchists is formed.

Caesar, the computer-animated ape with super smarts, is a wondrous achievement made from computer wizardry and the best motion-capture actor in the biz, Andy Serkis (Smeagol in "Lord of the Rings" and the big guy in the 2005 "King Kong.") The story and the themes are predictable, but the emotional bond between James Franco and a super-sympathetic CG ape is a true surprise.

"City of God" (R) [Blu-ray] -- This rerelease of the 2002

urban drama is a good chance for those who've missed out to finally see this unique epic. In the slums around Rio De Janeiro, every alley and apartment is pregnant with human stories. In the lifetime of two boys from the neighborhood, we see innocence, crime, love and an all-out war between a gang lord and one man who stood up against the poison in his city.
